JOURNALIST:

Do you expect any resistance from major sporting codes or gambling companies?

FIFIELD:

Well it's interesting, the gambling companies have actually been at the forefront of calling for just these types of restrictions.

The Responsible Wagering Council has been urging the Government to look at this area because they recognise that there's a need for change. And the sporting codes, I think that they're responsible. And I think that they will accept what we're putting forward.
